

The Questing Universe

(Defining the Realms that dictated the actions and goals of the primary characters within our novels)

The Questing Universe, as we present it within our writings, represents the basis of existence for all of our stories and the characters that inhabit it. In our opinion, the justification for living our personal lives in this, our Obstructed realm is described. The act of existing creates the experiences that the characters in our stories embrace.

The highest Spiritual Realm is Supreme Consciousness. This existence is most likely thought of by most of us as God or the Creator. Souls in this Realm have reached spiritual perfection, which is Supreme Consciousness' ultimate intention.

Like newborn babies in our earthly existence, Supreme Consciousness created new Souls as individuals, but with no recollections or experiences of who or what they were, are now, or what they will become. These new souls then evolved, starting with their experiences at the lower spiritual levels or realms. As they experience, they evolve, and eventually, they will return to Supreme Consciousness with an enhanced individual spirituality earned through countless personal experiences.

The process is complex, but perhaps we can simplify it by describing the various Realms involved in our journey from original Creation to experiencing individual spiritual growth within the different Realms across multiple life experiences. As previously stated, we ultimately return to Supreme Consciousness as a fully formed Spiritual Being within Supreme Consciousness.

Our spiritual evolution starts within various realms that we refer to as Obstructed Realms. As with all things considered obstructed, multiple elements or matter or energy will act to block an instant passage of any kind, be it a thing or a thought. This process is a very effective means of forcing the learning of a lesson because the resistance requires our emerging consciousness to deal with the effort to resolve the blockage. Once learning how to surmount any blockage, passage to the next level of consciousness is assured. Limited experiences do not accomplish this effort, and therefore, many lifetimes dealing within these obstructed realms are always required.

After the Obstructed Realms, the following higher levels are the Transitional Realms, also known as the Unobstructed Realms. There are no obstructions or blockages within these realms, and there is no physicality. Only pure spiritual energy exists. The Transitional Realms are for souls now in a state of introspection. This introspection focuses on the soul's previous incarnations and experiences before leaving the Transition Realm and reentering the Obstructed Realms to gain more knowledge and experiences through an individual reincarnation.

Following that stage is the Zenithal Realm, where certain highly evolved creative souls desire to guide less advanced souls in the Transitional and Obstructed Realms. These highly developed Zenithian Spirits are responsible for initiating new individual worlds within the various Obstructed Realms. Zenithians guide souls that are incarnating in those worlds. They follow the soul's passage from the Obstructed Realms into Transitional Realms to assist those souls' further evolvment and improvement. Another primary responsibility of the Zenithians is to create and maintain the entire structure of the Obstructed Realms and their functions. In this manner, they are like Angels, with which we are all somewhat familiar within most cultures.

Once someone dies and passes out of the Obstructed Realms and does not require additional Obstructed Realm incarnations, they will still pass into the Transitional Realms, where they will continue their evolution, but still only in a pure energy form. These souls will continue interacting and dealing with individual problems regarding relationship and character issues until they feel ready to move towards a higher manifestation of spirit. They may elect to join and perform the creative functions as Zenithians or go on to the Transcendental Realm.

In the Transcendental Realms, advanced souls prepare to return to Supreme Consciousness. In the Transcendental Realms, souls have moved to the purely creative stage of their evolution and begin to meld their distinctive individualities and creativities to perfection. These souls move upward into Supreme Consciousness to share with Others in the Creative Spiritual Process.

The aspect of any soul's free will can defer the desires of even that of Supreme Consciousness. All souls created by Supreme Consciousness possess the same aspects as Supreme Consciousness, even if they have not yet evolved to the same level of power and maturity. Using a more familiar but still relevant and more uncomplicated term, "God cannot create a pure part of Itself that is lesser than Itself. However, the Created Consciousness must evolve into a pure Itself through the experiential process.

The entire point of creating these souls out of Itself is for all souls to evolve into Co-Creators and not to exist as supplicants. Returning to Supreme Consciousness is the foremost desire of Supreme Consciousness and all souls created in its image. The use of an individual soul's free will is one of the essential aspects of Creativity. This spiritual concept is a complicated subject in our Obstructed Realm because we observe and even honor direct crude powers that can force the will of one human over another for evil or good. A forced Will is not possible in the higher levels of spiritual existence. A soul can find that dealing with free will is a source of frustration, but ultimately, it is beautiful."

There is another aspect of spiritual introspection that we must discuss before knowing what challenges we are likely to face during our existence. That facility is one of observation, reflection, and prediction. It requires at least a familiarity with the existence and usage of the Ethereal Timeline, which is a spiritual phenomenon that allows knowledgeable souls to move backward or forward in perceived time to observe the activities and consequences of their previous incarnations. The Ethereal Timeline also assesses the outcome of a given social order.

Observation, reflection, and predictions are tools that Supreme Consciousness established primarily for those souls existing in the Transition Realms to use as they attempt to refine their spiritual progress. Souls needed to reflect on their performance in previous incarnations, and only by observing a past life objectively could they analyze and understand their failures and successes.

It is also possible for those here in the Obstructed Realm to access the Ethereal Timeline once we have reached a certain level of metaphysical evolution. Souls utilizing this capability while in the Obstructed Realm can also enable individuals to more objectively assess their actions in a previous life and determine if they were right or wrong, weak or strong in any given activity. As we all know, it is challenging to judge any situation dispassionately while being actively engaged in it. Becoming an observer from outside the situation can become far more objective.

In the ancient continent of Atlantis, many of those entities felt they were ready to initiate transcendence, which is the state where souls transform from spiritual beings that require expression within physical forms as in the Obstructed Realms and proceed directly to the Transcendental Realm.

Those souls in Atlantis failed, as will all souls who attempt it.

Hopefully, this brief overview of where we all come from and where we are all to progress will make our ventures within the Questing Universe a bit more understandable.